WHY CERTIFICATE COURSES:

Are you considering obtaining a master degree in health professions education? Motivation, drive and a passion for education is a key to get started but sometimes timing is also involved and it should suit your working capacity next to your job as a health professional and/or educator. Online learning might be the solution for you. In between the introduction courses and the MHPE programme, a programme of Certificate Courses in Health Professions Education has been introduced, to cater for participants at the level of course organisers. Certificate courses are intended for those who do not (yet) aim for the full research based MHPE programme.

THE EXPERIENCE OF ESTHER HEUTS, Oncological Surgeon and Assistant Professor, Maastricht University Medical Centre+, the Netherlands

“As a surgeon, I have been trained as a clinician, but lacked knowledge on several aspects of education”.

“The Certificate course was an excellent starting point for me, as a clinician, to find out that an online course is highly educative and can be combined with my busy clinical work and family life. As I wanted to expand my theoretical and practical skills in education. However, as a busy clinician with a family of three children, I was wondering if I could fit a master program into my busy daily schedule. This certificate course gave me the opportunity to see if the course met my expectations with respect to the content, time management and the online format of learning.

As a result, I decided to start the MHPE program. I entered the MHPE and can recommend both the certificate course and the entire MHPE program to anyone interested in learning various aspects of health profession education.”
